

Lord of the wind in the heart of the forest.

the akuna people believe that there is in the heart of the forest the Lord of the wind living as a mole with the arms and legs of a man.

this Lord gives visions to the hearts of men.

long ago the Akuna people were two peoples. the people of the forest of Mautlaro and the people of the plain of Sanuna.

Sanuna brought his people to the heart and met those of Mautlaro.

but they were in divine trance.

this made the people of Sanuna sick. they were frightened.

after that a great mistrust existed between the two peoples.

until Idina, born of the same mother as Sanuna, fell in love with Mautlaro.

so it was through the two chiefs that a bond was created between the peoples.

first Mautlaro gave Idina his knife, which was tempered as if by sorcery and was always sharp.

the lovers began to search for the secret way to the heart.

like children, taking care to avoid trance.

Idina opened the trail of the forest people with the knife.

Following Idina the people of the plains followed Mautlaro who said take the heart of the forest people and allow the wind Lord to give you trances in our way...

and so Sanuna brought his people to the heart of the forest to receive the trance and as the people of the forest learn without fear, and Sanuna said after that we will be one people...
